Overview

This course teaches the skills and knowledge required to recognise and assess severity of an allergic reaction and determine appropriate response; and to follow the Australasian Society of Clinical Immunology and Allergy (ASCIA) Action Plans or ASCIA First Aid Plan to provide appropriate first aid to a person experiencing anaphylaxis.

It also covers the recognition, risk management, prevention and risk minimisation strategies related to anaphylaxis. It provides the outcomes required to develop and implement a risk management plan to reduce the risk of severe reactions in individuals diagnosed at risk of anaphylaxis.

The skills and knowledge described in this unit can be applied in the workplace or in the community where providing first aid management of anaphylaxis may be required. This may include, but is not limited to: schools, early childhood, office environment, manufacturing workplaces, sport, fitness and outdoor recreation settings.

Application of this unit relates to the use of adrenaline (epinephrine) injector devices currently approved for use and available in Australia.

Key Learning Outcomes

- Identify the triggers, signs and symptoms of allergic reactions, including anaphylaxis
- Develop risk management and risk minimisation strategies for anaphylaxis. This includes the development and implementation of pre-emergency risk assessment/ management and the development of individual anaphylaxis management plans
- Provide an emergency first aid response to an individual experiencing anaphylaxis, until the arrival of medical assistance. This includes standard first aid procedures and the specific skills and knowledge to administer adrenaline using an adrenaline injector
